At a glance

Avistrata shows the FBOs at an airport and their posted fuel prices, from iFlightPlanner. You'll find them on the airport page, in the trip planner, in the FBO workspace, and in the phone apps. Prices are refreshed every morning and saved on your phone, so they show instantly and with no signal. Each fuel type has its own icon, so you can tell 100LL from Jet A at a glance.

1. Where prices show

Where	What you see
My Flights → Airports → an airport → Info	FBOs and fuel prices: each FBO with phone, UNICOM and fuel brand, and a price for each fuel, full or self service
My Flights → Trip planner	FBOs and fuel prices at your destination, and at each stop on a multi-leg trip
FBO workspace → Fuel prices	Prices at this airport: what the other FBOs at your airport post, next to your own prices
Pilot, Admin and Student apps	The same section on the airport screen, saved on the phone

2. How fresh the prices are

- Every price shows Prices as of with the date and time, and when it was reported.
- Prices are refreshed every morning for the airports your organization uses: FBO airports, aircraft and pilot home airports, airports on bookings and trips in the next two weeks, and airports anyone looked at in the last 30 days.
- Any other airport is looked up the first time you open it, and from then on it's refreshed every morning.
- If a saved price is more than a day and a half old, it's checked again in the background while you see the saved one, marked (updating).

3. On your phone, with no signal

When you sign in, and with each background sync, the app saves the prices for your airports: your home airport, your organization's airports and aircraft bases, your upcoming bookings and trips, and airports you looked up recently. Open the airport with no signal and the saved prices show with their date. In the FBO workspace, Check again asks for the latest prices.

4. Fuel type icons

Icon	Fuel
Blue drop	100LL (dyed blue)
Green drop	100/130
Purple drop	UL94 unleaded avgas
Light grey drop	UL91, G100UL and other undyed unleaded avgas
Black drop with a white J	Jet A, Jet A-1 and JP fuels
Green drop with a leaf	Sustainable aviation fuel (SAF)
Outlined drop with an M	Mogas
Grey drop	Anything else

The fuel name is always written next to the icon. The same icons are used on your FBO's price list, fuel orders, fuel farm and fuel price board.

Confirm with the FBO

Fuel prices come from iFlightPlanner and change often. Call the FBO to confirm the price before you plan around it.
